

TheNerubins ScreamSheet #1 for use with CyberpunkRed

What you have before you is a Screamsheet, or short news bulletin that is used in Cyberpunk Red as background information for missions/adventures. This one was originally designed and written in german to start a campaign of Cyberpunk Red. I have now translated the text and upgraded the layout and images to be in accordance with the homebrew-content-policy of R. Talsorian Games.

What is it for?

These news stories will form the basis for a number of oneshot adventures I will write and publish in the coming months, beginning with Emergency Insecticide, an adventure about the news story "City Council agrees to surveillance". The adventure will be made public once I had a chance to test it as well as an article documenting how I designed the adventure. Of course nothing can stop you from using this document as inspiration for your own stories in the time of the red. If you do please let me know how it went.

The news articles presented here are works of fiction and should not be taken out of this context.

Food not radioactive!

In a joint statement with the central institute of agricultural science of the EEC (European Economic Community), the Institut Technologique Agricole of the Université Paris, Biotechnica and Continental-Brands refuted the statement that their products would contain dangerously high concentrations of radioactive substances. Their statement included the findings of a study by the ITA that found all products were safe if taken with the Iodine supplements expected to be taken by citizens of the EEC.

Bum-Breaker merch available!!!

The serial killer known as Bum-Breaker, has opened a Ziggurat Garden Patch which offers T-Shirts, Video recordings of their kills and postcards signed in the blood of their victims. After speculations whether the shop was really run by the Bum-Breaker, discount codes were found at the body of their last victim. The NCPD assured us that the shop was not operated by a copycat. The Bum-Breaker primarily kills homeless people in the southern districts of the city. The NCPD failed to disclose how they were unable to apprehend them despite knowing about the shop. We at Lightray hope they get caught soon.

Gossip: Kress hates Arasaka Locusts

Nowadays they are everywhere, deep fried locusts from Wao-Oishi, a subsidiary of Arasaka, in three tasty flavours. Apparently President Kress finds the crunchy snack insulting to the american spirit. From our sources we hear the President sizzled like a locust in frying fat when one of her aides offered her a few during a diplomatic meeting. What is your opinion on them? Tell us in the comments. - G. Ossip

City Council agrees to surveillance

Recently Gregory Matheson and Jane Zherkovsky, both members of the Night City Council, were kidnapped to force them to transfer funds from the Reclaimers For Night City account. As a reaction the corporate councilors brought forth a law change that forces all councilors to be monitored using a biomonitor with location tracking. A new taskforce with members of the NCPD and Lazarus Security will be available 24/7 to combat any threats to our councilors. - P. «Bigshot» Quentin

Security Risk in YOUR Home?

Cris-TAL-Cleer, the producer of Best Smart Glass, had to face allegations by N54 Evening News that a hackable debug interface had shipped with all units of the On-A-Budget line produced since launch in 2043. According to the allegations the glass can be used for video surveillance as well as a keylogger by anyone who accesses the interface with the standard password. Lightray News endorses the work and entertainment solutions of WindowScreen and implores everyone to switch to their products for their own safety.

Implant Nationalisation?

Through a source in the NUSA Armed Forces we have become aware of a program to nationalise certain implants used mainly in construction work and in security consultants. If this program were to become active the Pacifica Confederation and by extension most likely Night City would soon follow suit. Any human resources manager would do best to assess the threat for their team and start early replacement of personnel. -L.-T. «ShowMeTheMoney» Richardson
